EUROPEAN WAR

Austrians have repulsed the Russians and occupy Lodz. The Russians are fleeing in that section, pursued by the Germans who are reported to have taken more than one hundred thousand prisoners. The Servian capital and neighborhood are still in possession of the Germans. In the West of France and Belgium the Germans are bending their efforts to reach Dover and Calais. Every effort by the allies to prevent this is being used. It is evident that the Germans will occupy coast towns across the channel from London, and then—

It is reported that the Kaiser has pneumonia, brot on by exposure and that three German cruisers were sunk off the south American coast.
